ROLL OF HONOR FOR WOMEN

LEADERS IN MANY IMPORTANT MOVEMENTS.

In This Country They Started Settlement Work, Playground Associations, School Nursing, School Farms, Pure Milk Movement and Other Good Works.

"Right under the eyes of men, but for the most part quite unsuspected by them, women are making over the world according to their ideas of what a world should be.
"This may seem like an extravagant statement, but it is easily proved in three sentences:
Of the great reform movements of the present a large number have been originated by women.
"In almost all great sociological or reform movements women have at least helped with the launching.
"There is hardly one great movement today in which women are not taking an active part."

The above statement is made by a writer in the Van Norden Magazine, who adds some instances out of the many available for backing up her contention. Right here in New York the work done by nurses in the public schools, an important development of the modern educational system, was started by Miss Lillian D. Wald. Previous to 1892 such a thing as a school nurse had never been heard of in this country. School physicians there were, but they merely examined the children and sent home those found to be suffering from any sort of communicable disease.

Miss Wald found that thousands of children were being deprived of an education because they had some trifling trouble, which could be taken care of at the school. She got the consent of the boards of health and of education to begin the experiment with one of the settlement nurses. At the end of the month this nurse was appointed a city official and had twelve assistants. Today there are 140 school nurses in New York under what is called the department of child hygiene, having a woman, Dr. Josephine Baker, at its head.

In other American cities other women started the same work. Two nurses did it in San Francisco, the Visiting Nurse associations in Philadelphia and Chicago, the "Mothers" in Boston. The movement begun by Miss Wald has now spread to a score of American cities.

The school farm work now adopted by many towns in this country was originated also in 1902 by another New York woman, Mrs. Henry Parsons. It is now directed largely by the International Children's School Farm League, with thousands of members all over the world.

The playground movement was started and worked up to success by club women in San Francisco, Denver, Chicago, Pittsburg, Detroit, Boston and other cities. In every case the women, after working against almost overwhelming odds to bring their project to success, demonstrated its worth so undeniably that the city authorities assumed control.

In the fight for juvenile courts the women, though the power behind the throne, have nevertheless been the power. Judge Lindsey says that in his early struggles for "a square deal for the kids" the women were practically his only supporters. Women's work and women's votes kept him on the bench. In Chicago women not only worked to get the juvenile court, they paid for its probation officer when it was established.

In Philadelphia the fight was led by the Mothers congress and the New Century (women's) club. Boston City and St. Louis owe their children's courts primarily to the work of the Humanity society. In fact every city that has a juvenile court has it because the women worked for it.

The pure milk agitation that is now being carried on by official and semi-official commissions all over the country began with the diet kitchens founded by New York women to furnish suitable nourishment for expectant and nursing mothers, bottle fed babies and sick persons requiring special diet. At first they paid little attention to the source of milk supply. Today the diet kitchens not only give out the certified milk that their crusade has secured, but they keep matrons in charge of their stations to show mothers how to modify milk to each baby's needs and to give systematic instruction in child care.

And here is another movement started by women, instruction for women in the care of children and the business of home making. The Visiting Nurse association, founded, supported and made up of women, began it. Then other organizations such as the Little Mothers' association and the League of Home Economics took it up.

Recently the women physicians of the country formed a Public Health Education league to give popular instruction—particularly to women—in general hygiene. The 288 day nurseries in America in addition to giving immensely better care to the children of mothers who have to go out to work than the mothers could be carrying on an extensive and intensive campaign of education.

Among the first persons in America to point out the evils of child labor and to prevent children from working were Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Florence Kelley and Miss Lillian D. Wald. They talk child labor until they had all the women's clubs in the country stirred up about it. Even the mp began to take notice. Then the national child labor committee, composed of both men and women, was formed.

A few years ago a number of rich and influential Chicago women, led by Mrs. Charles Henrotin, got together to consider the case of the working girl and made up their minds that they might just as well try to get the employers to do anything. If the working girl was ever to get a square deal, they decided, it would be because she had power to force it. And the only source of power for the workers, the women agreed, was organization. Hence the Woman's Trades Union league, a national body having locals in New York, Chicago, Boston and St. Louis, and made up of one-third of women like its founders and two-thirds of trade union girls. The league has succeeded in organizing many of the women's trades of the four cities in which it has locals and it has secured a fifty-hour week for women in Missouri, and won back the ten-hour day for women in Illinois.

The Consumers league was organized in 1899 by Mrs. Frederick Nathan and Mrs. Charles Russell Lowell of New York. There are sixty-one of these leagues now in the United States. The movement for the beautification of cities and towns was started by a woman, Miss Mary G. Hopkins of Stockbridge, Mass. She organized the New England Village Improvement association and the impetus thus given has spread all over the country. As a result there is a growing epidemic of street sweeping, alley cleaning, tree planting and general beautifying.

The women have started parks, put up fountains, monuments, tablets—with their own money, too. They have got the children interested and are organizing good citizenship leagues by the hundred. They are working everywhere for better sanitary conditions, fighting mosquitoes in Texas, making grocers cover their exposed wares with netting, doing factory inspection on their own hook and doing it enough better than many of the paid inspectors do.

In 1900 Miss Jessie M. Good of Springfield, Ohio, called a conference of city improvement associations and a national federation was formed which boomed the whole civic improvement work already largely carried on by women.
The settlement work in America was started by Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago; the prisoners' aid by Mrs. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America; the work for soldiers and sailors by Miss Helen Gould; the movement for the protection of working girls through working girls' clubs and travelers' aid by Miss Grace H. Dodge; the outdoor schools by Dr. Ellen A. Stone and Dr. Mary S. Packard of Providence, R. I.; the Red Cross by Miss Clara Barton.

NAINSOOK WITH LACE.

NAINSOOK with trimming of lace makes the daintiest possible underwear and this combination garment shows them used most effectively. It is trimmed to give, the long lines that are always attractive and it is made with a simple straight flounce joined to the lower edge of the fitted portion. If something simpler is wanted the fluff and banding can be omitted, but just as illustrated the garment is pretty and attractive, girlish and dainty. Dotted and cross-barred muslins are being used for such purposes, however, and would be pretty with trimming either of embroidery or of lace. Some girls use India silk, and lawn, both white and colored, is much liked for slips of the sort, but the material illustrated is one of the most practical and thoroughly satisfactory. The neck edge is finished with wide flat lace that gives something of a bertha suggestion and with little frill of lace.

A TIMELY SUPPLICATION.

Old students at Princeton have received an anecdote about Dr. McCosh, long president of the college. He was very absent-minded and in making the announcement at 8 o'clock chapel in the morning had to have some reminder on a memo card or he was almost sure to forget. One day the French professor asked him, just as he was mounting the platform in chapel, to announce to the juniors that their class would meet at 5 o'clock that morning instead of 10 o'clock. The president nodded, but completely forgot about it, not finding any reminder among his written announcements. A long prayer always brought chapel to a close in those days, and Dr. McCosh, on this day, was almost through the prayer when he suddenly remembered the request. Undeterred, however, he slipped in an additional phrase just before the "Amen," and the chapel faithfuls were edified to hear, among other petitions: "And, O God, cause the juniors to remember that their French class will be at 5 o'clock this morning instead of 10 o'clock." The juniors remembered.

CANCER CURED

MRS. SMITH'S SANITARIUM.
We cure any external cancer that can be treated. Breast cancer our specialty. We cure them after they have poisoned the glands under the arm-pit. We have the most wonderful cure known.

We will back our cure against any specialists' or cancer doctors' remedy as being the speediest, safest and most permanent cure known. We have the testimonials and specimens to guarantee our statement. Names of patients and address we have cured furnished on application. We have found that people suffering untold misery and nothing before them but a horrible death have no hesitancy when they find they are cured in giving the facts and helping some sufferer to a brighter future. Our cures are effected by South American herbs—no knife or caustic used. Our prices for curing you are about one-fourth what others charge for scattering the poison through your system and then telling you that you waited too long; you are now incurable. Thirty-six hours in the sanitarium under our treatment will convince the most skeptic, no matter who, where or when treated by, that we can do what we say.
Physicians, surgeons, specialists and the people generally, are cordially invited to investigate our cures and truthfulness. Everything open and above board; no fake; no swindle. Our reputation is having not lost a patient since our remedy was discovered 15 years ago.
